A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT:

Can you imagine Walter Hughson and Wilder Penfield at a Yale-Princeton football game in the fall of 1922 brainstorming about creating a club dedicated to the memory of William Stewart Halsted? I doubt that they and their co-conspirators, Lawrence Wharton, Arthur Stout and Harry Murray, had any clue that nearly 100 years later, the Society they formed would be celebrating its 90th Meeting. Just as they outlined, host academic institutions provide a rich environment for intellectual exchange and collegial fellowship. The towns and cities in which they are located provide cultural enrichment and opportunities for social interplay. What an enduring format that has benefitted Halstedians and created an important and unique legacy for nearly a century!

But I must say, it's not just our meeting format that sets us apart from other surgical societies. We, unlike other organizations, take stock in the contributions and memory of one surgeon who had such a prolific impact on our profession that it still hallmarks us each and every day in our work as surgeons. Today we recognize Halsted as a master surgeon, a demandingly effective teacher, and a significant creative force. But we also recognize how troubled and imbalanced he was in many ways. I believe that in our evolving understanding of Halsted's dichotomous existence, toggling between high function and dysfunction, we can bring ourselves and the science and art of surgery to a new universe. One in which we revel in the pursuit of excellence and at the same time, endeavor to maintain the health and wellbeing of our colleagues and ourselves.

Peter D. Olch, MD, Society historian for many years and dedicated Halstedian wrote some years ago, "Today the Halsted Society is a vigorous organization of professional men and women who support the purposes listed in Article II of the constitution: to perpetuate the memory of Doctor William Stewart Halsted; to further the scientific principles and ideals for which he stood; to encourage exchange of ideas, free and informal discussion, and a spirit of sociability and good fellowship among its members." What an apt description of who and what we are as an organization and as a group of people dedicated to our craft.

No, I don't think that any of our Halstedian founding fathers could have imagined all this. But how grateful we are for their initiative and vision to create what we now know as the Halsted Society. I, for one, have been pleased and honored to be one among fellow Halstedians. For it's from you that I have received wise counsel, new directions, and warm rejuvenation year after year. Let us once again, at this the time of our 90th Meeting dedicate ourselves to the success of our Society and commit to its ongoing maintenance and continued growth in the decades to come.
